This project is to be reflective of the rigorous academic criteria of both the University's Honors program and advanced research with the discipline. To be eligible for the honors project, the student must possess an overall GPA of 3.2. Typically, research projects are developed in a required research methods class [CRJU 3100 or POLS 4950 respective of the students' major] one semester and then completed the following semester in either POLS 4650 Practicum or CRJU 4900 Directed Research. ## E. History

1. Create the following course:

Rationale: Environmental history is one of the fastest growing sub-disciplines in the historical profession. A course in this field will offer Armstrong history majors additional breadth in their major field courses, and also allow students minoring in environmental studies to learn the historical issues that remain significant today. Topics may include the biological consequences of the European encounter with the Americas, the environmental impact of technology and war, the interrelationship and mutual impact of humans with the land and its plant and animal life, cultural attitudes and ideas about nature and the environment, and the roots of the current environmental crisis. Graduate students will need to complete substantial papers based upon original research and/or historiographical analysis.

Rationale: Although the program of study on the LLP website and our advising check sheets for the Professional Communication track indicate that only 9 hours of upper-level courses are required, the catalog reads as above.

The change will make the Prof. Comm. track consistent with the other English major track in the catalog, the new wording being identical to the English (literature) track.
