WHAT YOU CAN DO NOW TO PREPARE FOR THE NEW SCORE SCALE

While the launch of the GRE revised General Test is still more than a year away, there is a lot you can do to get ready before then:

1. Tell all of your potential applicants about the changes in the GRE revised General Test content and score reporting timing to ensure they meet your school’s admissions deadlines.
   * Candidates who take the GRE revised General Test between August and October 2011 will start receiving their score reports in November 2011. Throughout November, there will be slightly different reporting time frames. Beginning December 2011, normal score reporting of 10 – 15 days will resume. Note: If scores are required before November 2011, tell your candidates to take the GRE General Test before August 1, 2011.
   * If they don’t need their scores until after November 2011, encourage them to take the GRE revised General Test.

2. If you need to publish admissions criteria for this period now, here’s what you should consider:
   * Tell applicants your normal admissions requirements, based on the current GRE score scale of 200 – 800. In addition, let them know you’re accepting applicants with approximately the same GRE percentile performance.
   * Since the percentiles on the current score scale and the new score scale will be based on the same norms group, both your admissions teams and your applicants will be able to manage any combination using percentiles.

3. We recognize that each program within an institution presumably has scores and/or percentiles that correlate with success in its individual programs. Please note that those programs can continue to use scores/percentiles but should consider using slightly broader criteria and supporting documents for candidates who would normally fall outside of your requirements — until you can determine which GRE revised General Test scores are best suited for measuring the skills needed for success in each individual program.

Between now and 2011, we will provide other resources to help you prepare for the new score scale. From our GRE Client Relations Team on the ground and in-depth articles, to helpful videos and informative webinars, we’re committed to doing everything we can to help the graduate community get ready for the new score scale — and the many advantages that come with the GRE revised General Test.

We’ll continue to feature additional topics in upcoming issues. In the meantime, if you have any questions, contact our Helpline: GREhelpline@ets.org. And if you’d like more information on the GRE revised General Test, please go to www.ets.org/gre/revisedtest.
