Graduation Decorum

Graduation ceremonies are, by their very nature, festive occasions. The festivity celebrates the joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness, since the conferring of degrees signifies long, hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents, and spouses. In observance of the serious nature of the ceremony, students and guests are expected to maintain a measure of decorum appropriate for the occasion. Students are expected to return to their seats after receiving their diploma and to remain seated for the rest of the ceremony. Family and guests are asked to remain seated for the entire ceremony, refraining from leaving their seats in order to take pictures or to talk to graduates. Please be respectful.

Otis Samuel Johnson, Ph.D., ’64
Savannah’s 64th Mayor
Scholar-in-Residence and Professor Emeritus at Savannah State University

Otis Samuel Johnson, Ph.D., a Savannah native who served as the city’s 64th mayor, has a distinguished career in education and public service.

Honored by Georgia Trend magazine as one of the “Most Influential Georgians” in 2006 and 2011, Johnson graduated from Alfred Ely Beach High School in 1960 and served two years on active duty in the U.S. Naval Reserve before beginning his college career at Savannah State University in 1962.

He made history when he transferred to Armstrong State in 1963, becoming the first African-American student to attend and graduate from the institution. After earning an associate degree in Liberal Arts, he also became the first African-American from Savannah to enter the University of Georgia, where he earned a B.A. in History. In addition, he holds a Master of Social Work from Clark Atlanta University and a Ph.D. in Social Welfare from Brandeis University.

Committed to improving conditions for low-wealth families throughout his career, Johnson worked for the Economic Opportunity Authority and the Savannah Model Cities Program before joining Savannah State University as a faculty member in 1971.

In 1982, he was elected to the Savannah City Council and reelected in 1986. In 1988, he became executive director of the Youth Futures Authority, which assists at-risk children. Ten years later, he was elected to the Savannah-Chatham County Board of Education and returned to Savannah State to serve as dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences until his retirement in 2002.

In 2003, Johnson was elected as Savannah’s mayor and reelected in 2007. During that time, he also provided leadership for the creation of the Step Up Savannah, Inc. poverty-reduction initiative and Healthy Savannah.

A recipient of Armstrong’s 2005 Distinguished Alumnus and 2010 Notable Alumnus Awards, Johnson has received numerous national awards for public service and served on national advisory groups with a focus on school and social service reform, community building and youth development.

He is a founding member of The Aspen Institute’s Roundtable on Comprehensive Community Change, as well as the National Community Building Network, and a founding board member of the Georgia Campaign for Adolescent Pregnancy Prevention. He is also active with numerous civic organizations in Savannah.

Johnston was appointed as Scholar-in-Residence and Professor Emeritus at Savannah State in 2012. He has a newly released memoir, From the ‘N Word’ to Mr. Mayor: Experiencing the American Dream, which documents his journey through the Jim Crow era, the Civil Rights movement and becoming Savannah’s mayor.
University Mace
Armstrong State University’s ceremonial mace traditionally leads the commencement procession, serving as an important symbol of the institution’s history and legacy. One of the oldest symbols of authority, the mace serves as a treasured “Symbol of Office” and is vested with the power of the university.

Two leading Savannah artists, bronze sculptor Susie Chisholm and wood sculptor Dicky Stone, created a mace that symbolizes the university’s longstanding ties to the city. Crafted from bronze and wood, the design serves as an elegant tribute. A bronze magnolia flower cradles a bronze medallion adorned with a stately architectural image of the Armstrong House, the university’s original location at Bull and Gaston Streets in downtown Savannah. The inscription reads “Established 1935, Savannah, Georgia.” The mace’s staff has been handcrafted from the wood of a cherry tree grown on the university’s current campus.

Academic Regalia
The academic regalia worn by faculty and administration at today’s commencement ceremony traces its origin to that worn by faculty and students at medieval European universities. Modern academic regalia consists of three parts: the gown or robe, a headpiece, and a hood.

The gown’s traditional color is black. For the bachelor’s degree, the gown has full, flowing sleeves. The distinguishing feature of the master’s gown is the tippet sleeve. The doctoral gown is the most elaborate, with a much fuller cut and velvet panels on the sleeves, around the neck, and down the front. These panels may be black or the color that symbolizes the subject field in which the degree was earned.

The familiar square mortarboard is the cap worn with a tassel, which may be any one of three different colors—black, metallic gold, or the color representative of the major field of learning in which the degree was earned.

While the gown and headpiece denote the wearer’s level of education, the hood shows the greatest degree of symbolism. Those with advanced or professional degrees wear hoods symbolic of the degree. The hood is edged in velvet, which denotes by its color the field or discipline in which the wearer’s degree was earned. It is lined in two colors of silk representing the college or university from which the degree was granted. It is worn falling from the shoulders down the back of the gown in a display of vivid color.

Alma Mater

Alma Mater through the ages,
Singing thy undying fame,
Will thy sons and daughters cherish
And defend thy golden name?
To each heart thy noble story
And thy calm and stately grace
Herald thine immortal glory.
Armstrong, hail, all hail to thee!

Alma Mater, those before us
Left thine honor great and strong;
We who follow take their banner,
Raise it with a fighting song!
Consecrated is thy teaching,
Sacred is thy marble height,
Glorious thy spirit reaching
Ever upward to the light.

Words by Margaret Spencer Lubs and
Doris Falk, Class of 1939
