Gerontology Certificate ~ Page 2
Goal

This certificate program provides an interdisciplinary background in aging and presents the opportunity to explore aspects of aging relevant to the student's interests and career goals.

Objectives

The Gerontology Certificate program is designed to meet the following objectives:

- Students are presented with a theoretical and practical overview of the field of gerontology. The interdisciplinary nature of gerontology is emphasized.
- Students will have supervised experience with older adults in the form of community service, projects, or practicum experiences. It is expected that students will respond to older adults as unique, independent individuals.
- Students will be exposed to gerontological research and major public policy issues as well as how these impact aged adults.

Program of Study

A total of 18 semester hours:

- GER 5500 Survey of Gerontology
- GER 5510 Healthy Aging
- GER 5520 Gerontology Practicum
- A minimum of 9 semester hours from the following:
  - PSYC 5750 Psychology of Aging
  - PUBH 5500 Nutrition
  - Approved Electives

Course Details

- GER 5500 Survey of Gerontology (3-0-3)
  - This course is an introduction to the emotional, physiological, and social changes associated with the aging process and their effects on health.

- GER 5510 Healthy Aging (3-0-3)
  - This course addresses the principles of holistic aging: spiritual, social, emotional, intellectual, occupational, physiological, and motivational needs of the elderly.

- GER 5520 Gerontology Practicum (V-V-3)
  - Prerequisites/co-requisites
    - GER 5500
- 12 hours from:
  - GERO 5510
  - PSYC 5750
  - PUBH 5500
  - Other gerontological electives
  - Permission of instructor

- This course is designed to assist the student in applying the knowledge obtained from previous courses in order to implement a chosen role in gerontology. Supervisors from both the university and field settings, regular evaluations of the student’s performance, and appropriateness of placement are considered.

- A minimum of 9 semester hours from the following:
  - PSYC 5750 Psychology of Aging (3-0-3)
    - Prerequisite: PSYC 1101 (undergraduates only)
    - An analysis of the aging process as physical and biosocial change. Important adaptive aspects from health to economics are considered, with an emphasis on maintaining optimal quality of life. Research methods specific to the study of gerontology.
  - PUBH 5500 Nutrition (3-0-3)
    - Prerequisite: Area II Lab Science Sequence (undergraduates only)
    - Basic concepts of nutrition as major components to the enhancement of health.
  - Electives or Approved Transfer Electives
    - This allows for greater participation from all departments. Students may select up to 6 semester hours of electives from a list of elective courses approved by appointed gerontology faculty. Departments are encouraged to offer gerontology-related course electives.

Summary of Certification Process

In order to receive the Gerontology Certificate, a student should have the following documents in his or her Health Sciences departmental file:

1. Completed application for admission for certification.
2. A copy of a letter admitting the student into the program.
3. Recommendation from the faculty adviser indicating all course requirements have been met.
4. A transcript (requested by the student) that verifies item number three (3) above.
5. Graduate students only:
   a. Each student will file a Program of Study with the School of Graduate Studies no later than the completion of 15 semester hours.
   b. Each student will successfully complete an oral comprehensive assessment (administered on a predetermined date).
